Invertebrates: Coelenterates

Coelenterates have a large central body cavity and a single body opening, called a mouth. Many have tentacles and stinging cells to help them catch their prey. Common coelenterates are jellyfish, sea anemones, hydras, and corals.