Invertebrates: Echinoderms

Echinoderms are marine animals that have a body arranged around a central point, like cnidarians. This is called radial symmetry. Echinoderms have an endoskeleton and spiny skin. The group includes starfish, sea cucumbers, sea urchins, and sand dollars.