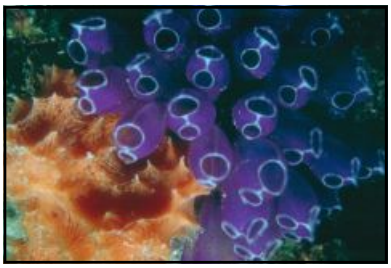
Invertebrates: Sponges


Sponges are the most simple of the invertebrates. Adult sponges live attached to rocks, making some people think they are more like plants than animals. However, sponges cannot make their own food; they filter food from the water as it passes by them.