

Natural Substances: Amethyst

Amethysts are the purple varieties of quartz, from light rosy lavender to brilliant deep violet. Amethysts have been found in graves of ancient Egyptians and Anglo-Saxons, attesting to their widespread use and popularity in the past. Today the gemstone has lessened in value due to the discovery of extensive Brazilian deposits.

