

The Albatross

Albatrosses are large seabirds related to petrels. Some species are among the largest of all flying birds. Albatrosses feed on krill, fish, and squid from on or below the ocean surface. They nest on remote ocean islands.

Handwriting practice lines consisting of solid top and bottom lines with a dotted midline, repeated ten times.